

Abstract of the Disclosure

The present invention relates to a method and system for securely recording a verbal transaction, the method including the steps of recording an offer and an acceptance of the transaction as a digital audio file, generating a voice security token from the recorded digital audio file, and providing the generated voice security token to buyer and seller, wherein the voice security token provides authentication of the transaction.